Special Security Policy and Clearance Center ✓

The Special Security Policy and Clearance Center is responsible for establishing security policy for compartmented major (TS) intelligence programs conducted by CIA and other agencies. This includes the establishment of a uniform system of security controls and other provisions for the maximum protection to intelligence sources and methods to be employed within these programs on an intelligence community wide basis. As an integral part of its functions, the Center concerns itself with the security aspects of industrial development and procurement of intelligence collecting systems, the operational utilization and/or deployment of such systems and the dissemination of collected intelligence products. In addition, the Center conducts necessary inspections on a continual periodic basis to determine compliance with established security policies.

As a separate function, the Center also maintains a master index of all persons approved for access to individual projects and resultant intelligence products and processes clearance actions, conducts security briefings and debriefings within CIA and portions of the intelligence community and supervises the establishment of and oversees the control centers for the entire community under three (3) separate control programs, i.e., operational access, product access and Special Intelligence.
